Job Description – Inside Sales

A cover letter is required to apply for this position

Facings of America is looking for a Design Consultant(s) for our Phoenix & Scottsdale showrooms. At Facings of America, we believe that what we do every day makes a difference and affects people's lives for the better. We are passionate about the tile and stone industry and take pride in our helpfulness and resourcefulness. We work hard to build collaborative relationships with our customers and do so with honesty and integrity. Over the past few years, our organization has increased sales through these collaborative relationships with our customers beyond the regular course of business. We have actively supported local charitable organizations to give back to the community and have started a scholarship for interior design students at a local college.

We are looking for a Design Consultant with a passion for design and sales who will take the extra steps to develop new relationships with the design community that will result in increased sales for the organization. We are looking for someone who will embrace our company values and encourage fellow employees to live the company culture.

After you have had a chance to research our company and think about the impact of this role, please send us an email, video, packet of information, or whatever you feel will best demonstrate why you are a great fit, how you would make an impact, and what specifically you bring to the table that will enable Facings of America to better serve our stakeholder community. Please visit our website at facingsofamerica.com to learn more about us.
